QUESTION 30
Which two European powers led Europe into exploration and colonization in the 1600’s?

In late 1988, Papua New Guinea’s post-independence history took a dramatic turn. On the island of Bougainville a factional landowner rebellion against the giant gold and copper mining company, Bougainville Copper Ltd, erupted almost without warning, and developed soon after into an intractable secessionists, then civil war – a war which everybody, at least up until 1997, seemed powerless to stop. It all began when the late Francis Ona, aggrieved landowner and former employer of the company, resigned in protest and, in the dying stages of that year, launched a campaign of terror and sabotage against the company for the continuing denudation of vegetation and the poisoning of river systems in Panguna, land passed down to his people by their forebears. So determined had been his resolve that, for almost a decade, he led his Bougainville Revolutionary Army and, together, they fought bitter battles against the might of the Papua New Guinea Defence Force, Police and the pro-government Bougainville Freedom Fighters. After the loss of between 10,000 and 20,000 lives, the permanent closure of one of the world’s biggest copper and gold mines, significant loss to the Papua New Guinea government revenue, downfall of Prime Minister Sir Julius Chan, and horrendous suffering and hardship for the Bougainville people, a remarkable Peace Agreement was reached between the warring parties in August 2001 which finally ended the ‘Bougainville Conflict’ and laid the basis for the achievement of the Autonomous Bougainville Government status for Bougainville in December 2005.

The Peace Agreement was a milestone achievement. While New Zealand, Australia, the Commonwealth and the United Nations intervened and started the process which eventually led to the signing of the Agreement, credit must surely go to the Bougainville people themselves for making conscious decisions to reconcile with one another and with Papua New Guinea in order to foster peaceful living on the island once again.

(ii) Who instigated the Bougainville conflict? (1 mark)

QUESTION 32

‘The Creation of Israel and the Arab-Israel War of 1948-49’

Causes of the Arab/Israeli War:

The trouble began soon after the First World War when large numbers of Jews began to settle in Palestine, a British mandate, hoping to set up a Jewish ‘national home’. The Arabs in Palestine were implacably hostile to the idea of a separate Jewish state in what they considered to be their homeland. In order to retain Arab friendship and their own oil supplies the British limited Jewish immigration to 10,000 a year (1939).

The Second World War intensified the problem with hundreds of thousands of Jewish refugees from Hitler’s Europe looking for somewhere to go. In 1945 the USA pressed Britain to admit 100,000 of them into Palestine; David Ben Gurion, one of the Jewish leaders, echoed this demand but the British refused, not wanting to offend the Arabs.

The Jews, after all that their race had suffered at the hands of the Nazis, were determined to fight for their ‘national home’. They began a terrorist campaign against both Arabs and the British, the most spectacular incident of which was the blowing up of the King David Hotel, the British headquarters in Jerusalem, with the loss of 91 lives (1946). The British responded by arresting Jewish leaders and by turning back ships such as the Exodus crammed with intending immigrants.

The British weakened by the war, were unable to cope; Ernest Bevin, the Foreign Secretary, invited the United Nations to deal with the problem, and in November 1947 the UN voted to partition Palestine, setting aside roughly half of it to form an independent Jewish state.

Early in 1948 the British abandoned the mandate and withdrew their troops, though fighting was already taking place between Jews and Arabs, who bitterly resented the loss of half of Palestine. In May 1948 Ben Gurion declared the new state of Israel independent. Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Iraq, and Lebanon then immediately attacked it.
